SONIC-GRAMS

THIS JUST IN! With Ken Penders

I shake my head in awe and wonder. If you had asked me back in October of 1993, when I first began writing stories with my then-partner Mike Kanterovich for this series, if we'd still be here chronicling the adventures of everyone's favorite hedgehog, I'd have thought the person asking the question was a certified loon.

Back in those days, we only thought about whatever story we were working on at the time. We didn't think in terms of long-range planning or wondering how long the book would last. Even reaching the 25th issue seemed so distant a goal at the time. Yet here we are, on the cusp of our 100th issue.

How major an accomplishment is that? Consider this: over the past 60 years, the vast majority of series have never reached, let alone surpassed, the 100th issue mark. And the track record for licensed characters—characters who originated in media other than comics—is even more abysmal.

Look at STAR TREK. No less than five different publishers have released various series based on all the TV shows and films, yet the highest issue number ever reached was 81. X-FILES never made it past issue 41. As for STAR WARS, we're eight issues away from tying that series' highest mark, and at the rate we're going, we'll be leaving it in the dust before long. Absolutely amazing.

When you think of longevity and success in comics, you think of Superman, Batman, Spider-Man, X-Men and Archie. Well, you can now add Sonic to that list, certainly the most successful video-game character that ever appeared in comics. A character embraced by his fans to a level that's the envy of an entire industry.

There have been many people involved with the creation of the stories featured in this series, as well as the various spin-offs. But for all our efforts, we could never have made it this far without the support of all of the readers who bought and read the comics, wrote us letters, sent us fan art and showed up to say "hi" at the various conventions.

Without you, we'd be like all those other series and characters who didn't reach the #100 mark. So, from all of us to all of you, we'd like to say THANK YOU, and we hope you'll stick around for the next 100 as well. Take care.

KEN—

COMING ATTRACTIONS

No. 100

NEXT ISSUE:

What more needs to be said? It's our landmark 100th issue, chock full of surprises, thrills, tears and anything else we could threw in. Karl Bollers, Ken Lim and Jim Amash handle the script and art on SONIC, and yours truly handles the honors on KNUCKLES. While I'd love to be able to tell you about Sonic and Sally and what happens next, I'm not going to rain on Karl's parade. And since I can't talk about Knuckles without giving the game away (including the fact that Julie-Su returns), I guess you guys will just have to join us in order to find out what happens. See you next month!

AND NOW ONTO OUR LETTERS:

Dear Sonic team,
I think I've got the perfect incantation to awaken Talk. I'm no Sabrina, but this is what popped into my head after studying the story leading up to the spell: "Higitus figitus zebus zun Come hither, Chosen One. Your friend, Knuckles, is very weak. A cure for him, you must seek!" In other comments, I'd like to see some Sonic characters' family trees featured in the comic, especially Tails' and the Acorn family trees. That would be so cool! I'd really like to know more about Mobius itself. In BRAVE NEW WORLD, there's a map of Mobius that shows the layout is strikingly similar to Earth, but that doesn't tell me anything about climate, length of day, or other details that a "sci-fi nut" (like myself) would be interested in.
April Washburn, Lebanon, KY

Dear Sonic-Grams,
I'm just writing to say how brilliant the current story line is. I know there are some people who think it's not as good as before, but they are wrong. I love the new Robotnik—he is totally insane, which makes him such a fun character! Nina is also another brilliant new character. She has a lot in common with Sonic—both their families were roboticized, and they both share an amazing gift, SUPER SPEED! The current story in Knuckles is also the best its been. Poor old Knux! He's all alone now. I hope he isn't the ultimate villain I've been hearing about... Is it true that one of the freedom fighters gets roboticized in issue 100? Anyway got to go now!!! Thank you for taking the time to read this.
James Giles

What? You'd have me spoil the surprises we've been saving for our 100th issue? I wouldn't make it out of the building alive if I did that. Suffice it to say that if you've been enjoying the stories so far, you'll really love this one.

Dear Sonic-grams,
I am kinda wondering where Ken is leading this whole Knuckles thing...I mean...he's totally green...and now he doesn't have eyes...just white. It kinda reminds me of being in a chao garden in SA...you look at the screens...and if you move the camera right, Knuckles doesn't have eyes.
Mariah Echidna

If you've been reading Knuckles on a regular basis, there's more than enough clues pointing out the direction the story line will be taking. By issue #100, you won't have to wonder any further, Mariah.

To whom it may concern,
My son, Jack, has loved Sonic comics since he was 4. He wanted me to send this drawing in to you. If it were to be published, it would be a dream come true for him.
Sincerely,
Lori Collins, Fort Worth, TX

One of the most heart-breaking aspects about our job is that we simply don't have the room to publish anywhere near the amount of drawings and letters we receive, Lori. We could publish issue after issue of nothing but fan art and still we wouldn't be able to make everyone happy. You're far from the only parent asking us to print their child's work. What we do instead is to pick at random, so at least everyone has a fair chance. I myself do whatever I can to increase those chances, but even then there's only so much anyone can do. I picked your letter because I wanted to acknowledge to all our readers that at the very least, we do read and examine every letter and drawing you send to us, even if we don't have the time to respond.

Dear Sonic-Grams,
Now that convention season is coming up, any idea if the writers and artists will be attending to meet with the fans? If so, who and when?
Brian Sapinski, Cherry Hill, NJ

At the moment, I'm unaware of anyone else's plans, but I'll start asking around to see if they will be. By the time this issue sees print, I'll be appearing at the Canadian Comic Expo in Toronto on August 24 – 26, 2001. For more details, check out the convention website at http://hobbystar.com/comicexpo/comicmain.html

And on that note, that's it for this issue. In the future, please keep your letters to no longer than a single page of type, single-spaced.

Thanks.
